Congress adjourned the other day and went to Barnum's show. Did Barnum reciprocate by adjourning and attending the congressional show?

Miss Lilian Carpenter, daughter of the late Senator Carpenter, has so far recovered from her illness in New Orleans as to be able to ride out. At one time her recovery was considered doubtful by her physicians.

The latest in regard to Conneli E. W. Keyes, we find in the Evening Wisconsin, which says: "E. W. Keyes is in the city. He is full of business and is said to be making money with his brother-in-law H. D. Fisher, at Florence, in lands and mines. He says all the statements of congressional aspirants of himself, Frank W. Oakley, and Senator G. B. Burrows, are cock-and-bull stories."

Janesville turns out the Big United States circus, but the very biggest United States circus is the one which opens the first Monday in the city of Washington and shows daily through the entire season. The efforts of the political tumbler and acrobats are varied and unique. The "ring" performances are the perfection of all that is possible in the way of boldness and audacity; and the contests over the Chinese question, the land-grant question, the polygamy question, the Mississippi river question, the Peru-Chili question, and all the other questions of greater or less degree have kept up protracted and entertaining displays for the diversion of the American people.

It is plain that young Belmont—who, if reports are true, is without doubt, the son of his father—will be a formidable candidate for the nomination for the Presidency by the Democratic party. A total failure in some direction is the first passport to Democratic favor. As a practical warrior McClellan thoroughly collapsed. As a statesman General Hancock was one of the most brilliant ignoramus in all history, and now Belmont has shown his extraordinary capacity to be the Democratic leader by his ignorance, stupidity, and audacity. Having an unlimited capital of both gold and brass, his availability as a Democratic candidate is most conspicuous.

Is Janesville to be left entirely out in the cold? What other live and prosperous city is there in the country for which Congress is not making some provision in the way of rendering its river navigable, giving it a new quarter-of-a-million dollar court house, providing a free letter delivery, creating a signal-service station, erecting a light house, boring an artesian well, and manifesting in some other tangible and financial manner that we have a paternal and fostering government—one which so many patriots are ready to serve for a proper consideration? Even an appropriation to repair the dam would be acceptable and much more sensible than many congressional expenditures. Janesville wants something—wants a big one and wants it quick.

The Gazette has received the eighteenth annual report of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company, which shows the state of business of that company during the past year. The following are the equipments of the company for the year 1881:

Locomotives	527
Passenger Cars (1st and 2d class)	26
Sleeping Cars	20
Parlor Cars	2
Baggage, Postal, Mail and Express Cars	135
Box Freight and Coal Cars	11,039
Flat and Coal Cars	1,419
Wrecking and Tool Cars, etc.	32

The total receipts of the company last year were a little over 17 million dollars, and the net receipts were something over six million dollars. Allowing the company to have under its management 4,000 miles of rail, it has one locomotive to about every eight miles, a fact, when thoughtfully considered, which will strike the reader with some astonishment.

One of the important questions which press for solution is, how shall the Supreme Court of the United States be relieved? Senator Davis, of Illinois, now President of the Senate, recently made a speech before that body in which he advocated the establishment of a Court of Appeals, where a large percentage of the legal cases would be stopped, and in fact a bill to this effect has been reported to the Senate by the Judiciary committee. The speech of Senator Davis showed his thorough acquaintance with all matters pertaining to the Supreme Court. Perhaps the most suggestive of his statements was that wherein he showed the prodigious growth of the litigation in our country. At the time the census was taken in 1810, there were but 98 cases before the Supreme Court; in 1840 there were 92 cases; in 1860 there were 310 cases; in 1870 the number had more than doubled, being 635 cases, and in 1881 there are 1,294 cases. The law books state that the law abhors litigation, but the abundance evidently does not extend to the people at large.

It is interesting to note the rapidity with which great changes take place in this era of the world. Within ten years the entire business of shipping cattle and beef to foreign ports has begun and grown up. Now these exports are among the largest on our entire list. Ships make special provision for the accommodation of live animals, and vessels with refrigerating conveniences transport vast quantities of beef. The objectionable part of all this business is, that the exported products are the very best the land affords, while the poor, lank and scraggy—the horned warrior of Texas and the long-legged racer of the mountains are left for home consumption. Chicago is the great center for selection and distribution. The choice heaves that weigh from 1,200 to 1,800 are bought and shipped to England; the next grade goes to New York for the metropolitan stomachs, while those animals which will not bear transportation, and all the poor and refuse stock are either bought by the butchers and retailed at the stalls or by the packers and canners who cook it, put it in bright tins, affix large red labels and send vast quantities to all the mining and lumber camps in the country; besides furnishing great amounts for every day use by the public at large.

BURIED IN A WELL.

WAUPACA, May 4.—Near the house of William Topping, some three miles from this city, John Clark was this afternoon buried in a well, which he was cleaning. At this telegraphing a large force of men are digging, trying to reach him. The worst fears are entertained that he is dead already, as he was down nearly fifty feet in the earth.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

WATERTOWN, Wis., May 4.—This morning during a severe thunder-storm lightning struck the old City Hotel, in which a number of men were engaged changing it over for a machine shop. The bolt shattered the building badly and instantly killed a carpenter named William Stengel, a resident of the Second ward. J. Dorfield and W. Korn, also working in the building at the time, were severely stunned by the electric current, but will recover from the shock. Stengel was 40 years old, and leaves a wife and two children.

Incredibly exists, but nobody has been heard to deny the nobleness and purifying effects of Glenn's Sulphur Soap.

INFERNAL MACHINES.

New York, May 4.—A German glass-blower, whose name the police refused to disclose, called to-day, and requested permission to examine the glass tubes found in the infernal machines which were recently sent through the mails to Messrs. Vanderbilt and Field, with the view of seeing if he could discover by whom they were manufactured. He was taken to the postoffice, and introduced to the authorities there. It is stated that the glass-blower failed to recognize the tubes as being the work of the parties whom he suspected. A careful examination of the cigar box intended for Superintendent Walling resulted in the discovery that there was gun-cotton mixed with the cotton wool in the box. A small part of the mixture when thrown into the grate in the Superintendent's office flashed and exploded.

How often persons have been annoyed by burns clinging to their dress or clothing, and how seldom have they, when cleaning them, given it a thought that Barlock Root is the most valuable blood cleanser and purifier known, and is sold by every druggist under the name of Barlock Blood Bitters. Price $1.00. Sold by A. J. Roberts and F. Sherer & Co.

THE MOREY LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—The origin of the Morey letter has at last been discovered. The ringleader in the conspiracy was H. H. Hadley, a prominent officer of the Hancock Republican club, of New York, an organization that embraced within its membership a number of Republican politicians who foolishly jumped into the Democratic ranks at a time when they imagined Hancock would be elected. Hadley has told the story of his connection with the forgery. While the details of the statement are suppressed, it is known that Hadley and his associates palmed off the letter as an original document upon the Democratic National committee. John I. Davenport, of New York, who deserves the credit of having unearthed the forgery, is still engaged in following up the trail, with the expectation of running the game into the Democratic camp.

A Significant Fact.

The cheapest medicine in use is THOMAS' EUCUTICURA. It is so very little of it is required to effect a cure. For croup, diphtheria, and diseases of the lungs and throat, whether used for bathing the throat or chest, or for taking internally or inhaling, it is a matchless compound sold by A. J. Roberts and Sherer & Co.

STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY.

MADISON, May 4.—The regular annual convention of the State Medical Society was held yesterday at Mineral Point. Besides the transaction of routine business, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President, Dr. T. P. Russell, Oshkosh; vice presidents, Drs. Vivian, Mineral Point, and Day, Wauwatosa; secretary, Dr. J. T. Reece, Appleton. The next convention will be held in Milwaukee.

It acts directly upon the stomach, liver and kidneys in a remarkable manner. ZOPES from Brazil, is only appreciated by those who have tried it. Every bottle warranted to cure Dyspepsia. Sold by Prentice & Evenson.

THE OHIO LAW.

CLEVELAND, May 4.—The County Auditors along the line of the Lake Shore road met here to-day, and a reporter called upon them to get their views as to how the Pond bill was working. Not one county was found in which the treasury was swelled by the payment of the tax. In Lucas county about thirty of Pond applications have been given out, but not a dollar has been paid into the treasury by Toledo saloonists. Auditor Ricketts thinks fully half of the Toledo saloonists will retire from business if the law is not proven unconstitutional.

GARFIELD'S MEMORY.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The decoration of the Capitol rotunda for the tea-party which is to be held there on Saturday night next, began to-day. It is to be for the benefit of the Garfield Memorial Hospital fund, Congress having given the use of the rotunda. During the centennial year the ladies of San Francisco sent a very large and handsome silk flag to be used in decorating the rotunda for the Martha Washington tea-party which was held there. The same flag will be the principal part of the decorations this time. It was suspended in the rotunda this afternoon. There is considerable feeling between the managers of this hospital idea and those who have charge of the Garfield Memorial fund. Neither have more than half enough to do what they want, but decline to join forces and make a success out of either. Just now, however, it looks as if all the money will be used towards erecting a monument. There are already as many hospitals as is necessary in the city, and, besides that, an investment in a monument never has to be made but one time, while it needs repeated appropriations to keep a hospital in running order.

WHITEWATER SALOONS.

WHITEWATER, May 4.—Thirteen licenses to sell whisky were granted here yesterday, as a result of the victory by the license party Tuesday.

A STRIKE.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., May 4.—A strike among some fifteen piers in one of the Eau Claire Lumber company's yards occurred to-day for higher wages. The amount received was $35, not including board. Their demand for $40 was refused. From present indications the strike will be general, but no violence is anticipated. The men were paid off and suspended.

OBITUARY.

LA CROSSE, Wis., May 4.—Colonel Charles S. Benton, an old resident of this county, died this morning. He has been in very poor health for two years, and on this account was obliged to resign his place being filled by the Hon. Hugh Cameron. Mr. Benton had a very remarkable career. He was born in Maine in 1910. He was four years Congressman from that State, representing the Seventh District. He has been engaged in the newspaper business in a number of points in the Northwest, and also in the East. Mr. Benton came to LaCrosse over twenty-five years ago, and has taken an active part in the city and county affairs.

Cuticura
THE NEW BLOOD PURIFIER
Resolvent

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodine, potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, mercuric iodine, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally, and the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months. Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.
Rev. Dr. Drake, in detailing his experience with the CUTICURA REMEDIES, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally. The poison that fed the disease was completely driven out.

EZEMA.
It is as if since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance, I tried various remedies with no good result, until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever. LEN. M. FAIRLEY, 61 South St., Baltimore.

CUTICURA.
The Cuticura treatment for the cure of Skin Scap and Blood Diseases, consists of the internal use of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, and the external use of CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP, the Great Skin Cures. Price of CUTICURA, small boxes, 25¢; large boxes, $1. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. CUTICURA SOAP, 25¢; CUTICURA SHAVING SOAP, 15¢. Depot: WEEKS & POTTER, Boston, Mass.

Sudden Deafness.

A lady who, just before the Peninsular war, had been married, heard suddenly and quite unexpectedly that her husband had been ordered out to the seat of war. So great was her horror that she became instantaneously and perfectly deaf, remaining so for many months; and it was feared that her case was incurable. Some months later she was in church on a Sunday morning. The congregation began to sing a hymn, and quite suddenly her hearing returned, so much to her surprise that, forgetting where she was, she jumped up and called out: "Why, bless me, I can hear as well as ever I could in my life." She retained her powers of hearing to a good old age.

A poor lady, governess in a family, was standing one day in the hall when one of the children of the house, who was sliding on the balusters, fell over them, and was killed at her feet. The poor lady, from horror, became immediately perfectly deaf.

Perhaps one of the most curious cases is that of a child of seven, apparently quite strong and healthy, who seems to have actually become deaf from the effects of nightmare. The story is worth telling here, if only in the hope that it may make some reader less eager to despise childish night-terrors. How often nurses, and even mothers, and those very loving and tender ones, try to scold a child out of these night alarms, "foolish" as they call them; yet how many are there of their elders who have not experienced such terrors?

There had been great Fifth-of-November riots in one of our southern towns. Men in hideous masks had paraded the usually quiet streets; two citizens, who had offended their fellow-townsmen, were burned in effigy; and, of course, there was the regular accompaniment of squibs and crackers, and in the end a tremendous street disturbance, needing the intervention of the police. So alarming and annoying had the disturbance been to quietly-minded citizens that it was resolved never to allow a Fifth of November to be observed again in the town; and great was the rejoicing in quiet households over this decision of the Town Council. A few days before the return of the festive day, children had been playing happily together, and, as far as can be discovered, nothing had been said or done to alarm any of them. They went to bed as usual, but had not been long in the dark when the youngest, a little girl, ran into her elder brother's room and exclaimed: "Oh, I feel so frightened; I can't help thinking of the Fifth of November; and when I shut my eyes I see those horrid masks, and I can't get to sleep."

The brother was very gentle and tender with her. He assured her there would be nothing done in the town on the fifth, and carried her back to bed, telling her she must be good and remain there, and that no harm would happen to her. A few minutes after she ran back to her room, again describing her utter terror; she could not help seeing those dreadful masks, and she felt so dreadfully frightened.

Again he took her back to bed, and tried to coax her to sleep, with apparent success; but after a little while she ran down to her mother, exclaiming: "O, mama, I feel so dreadfully frightened; I can't help seeing those horrid masks; and I wish papa would come home and syringe my ears, for I am quite deaf." The mother took her in her knee, and coaxed and fondled her till she fell asleep; then she took her to bed, and waited in much anxiety for her husband's return. She told him of the child's dreadfully excited state, and took him up to see her; but she was sleeping so placidly it seemed a pity to wake her. Sleep was the best medicine.

Next morning, when she woke, they discovered to their horror that the child was stone deaf; and not only has she remained so ever since, but being so young at the time of her affliction, she had also become almost quite dumb. Evidently the sound of her own voice in her head was most painful to her. Sudden, abrupt noises, she could still hear. No doubt, she would be able to derive some benefit from one of the new inventions—the audiphone—for enabling the deaf to hear, from the vibrations of sounds conducted from the teeth to the ear; but all efforts to restore injury to ing have been useless. The her hearing this tiny, imperceptible nerve has so affected all the rest that the idea of being examined by a doctor seemed to her the unkindest of all. Some of the cleverest artists of the day were consulted. All advised the same: "Leave her alone. Any effort to conquer these fears is only likely to increase the injury to the nerves; time may cure it; nothing else will."—Chamber's Journal.

A Little Boy's Coolness.

The suit of William O'Connor against the Boston and Lowell Railroad at Lawrence has resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff in $10,000, one-half the amount sued for. The case grew out of an accident which occurred August 27, 1880. The plaintiff was the father of a child then between five and six years old. He and his brother, three years older, were crossing a private way maintained by the railroad for the Essex Company, and the younger boy, while walking backward, stepped between the rail and plank of the roadway inside and was unable to extricate his foot. At that moment the whistle of a train was heard within a few hundred feet and out of sight around a curve, and it appeared from the evidence that the older brother, finding himself unable to relieve his brother, ran down the track toward the train; but, finding that he could not attract the attention of the train men to his brother's condition, and that he must be run over, ran back to him, and, telling him to lie down, pulled him outward and down and held him there until the train had passed. Both feet of the little fellow were cut off or mangled so that amputation was necessary. The theory of the defense was that the boy was not caught, but, while running across the track, fell and was run over. But the testimony of the older brother was unshaken in every particular. It would be difficult to match the nerve, thoughtfulness, and disregard of self displayed by this boy, who at that time was less than nine years old. —Boston Herald.

The Advent Preacher and the Balloon.

There occasionally occurs in this world that will make a person laugh though the laughing may border on the sacrilegious. For instance, there is not a Christian but will smile at the ignorance of the Advent preacher in Jackson County who, when he saw the balloon of King, the balloonist, going through the air, thought it was the second coming of Christ, and got down on his knees and shouted to King, who was throwing out a sand bag, while his companion was opening a bottle of export beer, "O, Jesus, do not pass me by." And yet, it is wrong to laugh at the poor man, who took an advertising agent for a Chicago clothing store for the Savior, who he supposed was making his second farewell tour. The minister had been preaching the second coming of Christ until he looked for him every minute. He would have been apt to think, living as he did in the back woods, that a fellow riding a bicycle, with his hair and legs parted in the middle, along the country road, was the object of his search. We should pity the poor man for his ignorance, we who believe that when Christ does come he will come in a palatial car, or straddle of the basket of a balloon. But we can't help wondering what the Adventist must have thought, when he appealed to his Savior, as he supposed, and the balloonist chided a sand bag at him, and the other fellow in the basket threw out a beer bottle and asked, "Where in—am we?" The Adventist must have thought that the Savior of mankind was traveling in mighty queer company, or that he had taken the other fellow along as a frightful example. And what could the Adventist have thought when he saw a message thrown out of the balloon, and went with trembling limbs and beating heart to pick it up, believing that it was a command from on high to sinners, and found that it was nothing but a hand bill for a Chicago hand-me-down clothing store. He must have come to the conclusion that the Son of Man had got pretty low down to take a job of bill posting for a reversible ulster and paper collar bazar. It must have been food for reflection for the Advent preacher, as he picked up the empty beer bottle, shielded at him from the chariot that he supposed carried to earth the redeemer of man. He must have wondered if some Milwaukee brewer had not gone to heaven and opened a brewery. Of course we who are intelligent, and who would know a balloon if we saw it, would have had any such thoughts, but we must remember that this poor Advent preacher thought that the day had come that had been promised so long, and that Christ was going to make a landing in a strong Republican canopy. We may laugh at the Adventist's disappointment that the balloon did not tie up to a stump and take him on board, but it was a serious matter to him. He had been waiting for the wagon, full of hope, and when it came, and he saw the helmet on King's head and thought it was a crown of glory, his heart beat with joy, and he plead in pious accents not to be passed by, and the confounded gas bag went on and landed in a cranberry marsh, and the poor, foolish, weak, short-sighted man had to get in his work mightily lively to dodge the sand bags, beer bottles, and rolls of clothing store posters. The Adventist would have been justified in renouncing his religion. It is sad, indeed. —Peck's Sun.

Gen. Garfield Left Handed.

In 1879, after the Ohio Republican State Convention met in Cincinnati, we wrote to General Garfield, telling him that his style of speaking, particularly the using of his left hand, reminded us so forcibly of our editorial predecessor, Selticus Garfield, that we were curious to know their relationship, if any. He replied as follows, from Washington City: J. G. CRADDOCK, PARIS, KY.—DEAR SIR: In answer to yours of the 30th of May, I have to say that Selticus Garfield and I are descended from the same stock, though I have been unable to trace our exact relationship, which is distant. I did not think that he was left handed, but I am the left-handed man you ever saw. Very truly yours, J. A. GARFIELD.

Selticus Garfield (his name closed with an e) emigrated from New England to Kentucky, and became noted here as a law or constitution maker, occasional preacher of the same church as James A., editor, and Democratic State Electoral Debater. In 1857 he went as Register of Lands to Washington Territory, but since the war has been served as Republican Delegate to Congress from Washington Territory, he now being, we believe, located in Washington City.—Kentuckian.

Literary Wares.

The late James T. Fields, while an active partner in the firm of Ticknor & Fields, was well known by a young son, a merchant who had poetic aspirations. The merchant's son complained that his manuscript poems had been rejected by the firm, and he wanted to know the reason why, inasmuch as all of his friends had heard the verses read, and unanimously declared them to be accessions to American literature. "Our reader decides that," said Mr. Fields, in his bland tones. "Then I would like to see the reader." Always the personification of amiability himself, the publisher took the merchant up stairs to the reading room. That mighty personage sat at a desk heaped high with manuscripts; he carefully read a few pages of each package, then dropped it into a basket at his side. Occasionally he became more than ordinarily interested; in that case he placed the package inside his desk. "Why, he goes through 'em just as I sample sugar!" exclaimed the would-be poet, in amazement. "That's because he's familiar with literary wares as you are with sugars," rejoined Mr. Fields. "I am satisfied, let us go," said the merchant. They went, and the disappointed bard gave up verse-making, but he made a large fortune in sugar.

"Say," said the city youth to the modest countryman, "hay seed out of your hay year yet?" "Wal," was the deliberate reply, "I judge not, from the way the calves run after me."

All bachelors would like to shake hands with the man named Morse, who recently got married, and four weeks later applied to the legislature and had his name changed to Re-Morse.

Swearing Off on Politics.

The man who has once been addicted to politics finds it hard to reform and break the fetters that bind him. He makes a resolve, in his mind, that never again will he touch the fatal politics, and he goes along for months without thinking of indulging, but in an unguarded moment, after the campaign opens, he thinks of something that can be played on the opposition, and he takes the first step, and then he goes down, until election day he is peddling tickets like an old stager, at night he is around hearing the returns, at midnight he is whooping it up with the boys, and at three a. m. he goes up stairs at home on all fours, his head overwhelmed by a good majority, his head as uncertain and wavering as the chances of his party, his tongue as thick as opposition votes, and his breath as strong as the atmosphere in a malt house. He has lied to his wife about having to go to the lodge to give some high degrees to some Masons from the country, and when she smells his breath she knows how high the degrees are, and it all comes over her in a second—not the breath, but the idea—that he has fallen from his high estate and again sunken in the mire of politics. After election, and his party is beaten, as usual, he swears upon a stack of brick, in his hat, that he will touch not, taste not, handle not, the intoxicating and demoralizing politics, but he lies, and he knows it. What the boy wants is a society for reforming men who are addicted to politics, a society where he can go when he feels the old appetite coming on, and have his thoughts turned to a different channel. He is weak, and he wants his brothers and sisters to take him by the hand, particularly the sisters, and brace him up, and make him strong against the enemy. When he feels like taking a hand in a campaign, where he knows that he will surely fall, and come out with the smell of kerosene and beer on his garments, and chide on his breath, he wants to feel the strong arm of the society around his waist, and hear the members singing songs of Zion instead of hurrahing for somebody for justice of the peace. But if such a society were formed for the reformation of the politicians, just about the time it got the converts strong enough to walk alone, the confounded society would nominate a ticket of its own and go into the campaign making more noise than all the other political parties, and the reformed politicians would find that they had jumped out of the frying pan into the fire. "I was ever thus from childhood's hour." —Peck's Sun.

Things Which Annoy One.

To get fairly out of the house and find you have forgotten the very thing you want to take with you. To get yourself snugly settled in your seat and your baskets, bundles, packages, valise, umbrella, and bird cage all stored away in the rack and before and behind you on adjoining seats, and then to discover you're in the wrong car.

To sit next the talking couple at the theater.

To see yourself in a lucid moment as others see you.

To trade with the "furnishing store" clerk who insists after you have bought what you desire on selling you cravats, collars, cuffs and fancy hosiery.

To buy "something handy to have in the house" and be told by your wife on taking it home that you've paid twice too much for a poor article.

To put something away for safe keeping so carefully that you can't find it again.

To sit down hungry at the restaurant and wait fifteen minutes before you can catch a waiter.

To fix your mouth for a favorite dish and after waiting ten minutes more to be told "It's all out."

To have the septuagenarian, who all your life has been an old man to you, speak out to you, "Well, you're getting old like the rest of us."

To be always putting your knife or pencil in the wrong pocket and going through all the rest before you can find them.

To stow your railroad ticket carefully away in some secret recess of your clothes and then forget it, and at regular intervals be seized with a season of fear that you have lost it, consequent on which comes a spell of frantic rummaging until you find it.

To attempt in one day more business of various sorts than your mind can grasp or your hands can handle.

To be taken on the Bowery by a confidence man or other species of sharper for a verdant countryman.

To be told you are growing old when you know you are growing young.

To be told by advisory friend that you ought not to do so and so when you haven't done anything of the sort, and then be told you ought to do thus and so when you have all along been doing it.

To PROMOTE A VIGOROUS GROWTH of the hair, use Parker's Hair Balsam. It restores youthful color in gray hair, removes dandruff, and cures itching of the scalp.

In Affectionate Remembrance.

"What shall I get you to remind you of me while I am away," asked a fashionable Austin young gentleman of his intended.

"Do you want to get me something that will always make me think of you, when I look at it?"

"Yes, darling."

"Then buy me a monkey to play with." —Texas Siftings.

"Ar, dearest," sighed the young man at the feet of his ownest one, "dost thou know what of all outward things is nearest my heart?" "Really, I can't say," she replied, "but if you have any regard for your health in this changeable weather, I should think it was a flannel shirt." She was too practical, and it broke the engagement. —Stevensville Herald.

"GRACIOUS!" said a father, as he looked at his son William's torn trousers, "get that little bill recased." And she replied, "So I will."
